Chairman price left the chair to second warmly the nomination of Mr. Cannon. He had made careful inquiry of the business element, of the legal fraternity, and in various other directions, and was convinced that the committee could not find a more acceptable candidate, though he admitted that he was not as more intimately acquainted tips more intimately acquainted the other men mentioned. Sev-members spoke briefly, urging se-consideration, that the commitrious consideration, that the commit-ter was on trial, and that any mis-step would not only mean a fight against independent candidates in the special election, but also the weaken-ing of the party in Richmond. When nominations closed only Messrs Can-non and Kelley were before the House, and there was a tense moment as the roll was called.

The Final Vote.
It resulted as follows:
For Mr. Cannon: Messrs. Blanks,
Browning, Burnett, Carrington, Evans,
Jennings, Jones, Ladd, Mosby, Pettus, Shiflett, Sibley, Steiner, Taylor, Duke,

For Mr. Kelley: Messrs. Connen, Ferrandini, Florance, Fowlkes. Fagan. Hart, Hodges, Lenahan, Mason, Meredith, O'Neal, Purcell, Redford, Rogers, Saunders—15.

The nomination was thereupon made manimous and the committee adjourned, after enthusiastic expressions from all sides that it had done the wise thing for the best interests of the party. More than one speaker took occasion to point out that Mr. Cannon, who ran seventh for the House of Delegates, received at that time more than 5,000 votes, against which any independent candidate would stand a small show. It was further pointed out that in the campaign for the House Mr. Cannon published in some out that in the campaign for the House, Mr. Cannon published in some detail his platform on the issues now before the State, and that the platform coincides in all essential details with those of the Richmond nominees for the House and of the former nominee for the Sevate

Will Issue Answer to Virginia Bankers Who Criticize Bill.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Washington, September 30.—Representative Carter Glass, chairman of the House Committee on Banking and Currency, reached Washington to-day from a brief visit to his home at Lynchburg. Mr. Glass stated to The Times-Dispatch correspondent that there were two matters to which he would probably give his attention within a short time.

He will, it is understood, issue a reply to the resolutions adopted by the Virginia Bankers' Association, when the association members met in an emergency session at Hichmond a few days ago to protest against the Glass-Owen bill. Mr. Glass is not yet ready to make known what this statement will contain, but it is understood that it will be a vigorous reply to the bankers' resolutions.

It was stated by Mr. Glass to-day that he would, within the next week or ten days, take up the matter of filling the postmastership at Bedford City, about which there has been a warm context.

As soon as these matters are disposed of Mr. Glass expects to take a rest to recuperate from the arduous work in preparing and putting the currency bill through the House.

Rushing the Bill,

Rushing the Bill,

Washington, September 20.—The Senate Banking and Currency Committee to-day for seven hours heard a discussion of the administration currency bill by Charles A. Conant, financial expert of New York.

Conferences at the White House and the Capitol among administration forces took up the problem of hurrying consideration of the measure in the committee, where a majority of members appear to be willing to inten to all testimony available. Senators owens and Shafroth, champions of the bill, talked with President Wilson and then conferred with the Democratic members of the committee, who have shown an aversion to certain provisions. Later it became known that an attempt will be made by the administration on Saturday to get the committee to set a date for closing the hearings.

Detroit, Mich., September 30 .- "Every adocate of good roads should be an advocate vocate of good roads should be an advocate of the merit system as the vital means to that end," declared John T. Doyle, secretary of the United States Civil Service Commission, in an address before the American Road Congress here this afternoon. Few of the hundred thousand or more State and county road officials, under existing legislation, have any knowledge of road construction or maintenance, he said.

"It is estimated that more than $150,000,000 a year is being expended for the construction, and upkeep of our public roads," centinued Mr. Doyle. "It therefore becomes an important economical essential that this Krent outlay be expended under trained, capable and honest supervision. The main essential is to take the management of public roads out of politics,"

Shackleford Not in Harmony.
United States Representative Dorsey W. Shackleford declared he was "not in harmony with the dominant spirit" of the congress, and vigorously opposed the so-called "touring road" advocates. He urged support for the "business roads" class, which, he said, aimed for "cheaper transportation and lower cost of living."

"The 'touring roads' class, declared Representative Shackleford, "demands that the United States shall limit its road activities to the construction and maintenances of a few "ocean-to-ocean" and 'cross-country' highways of great perfection, and then leave of the merit system as the vital means to
